Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 08 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Low cloud and drizzle spreading westwards. East drier and clearer.

This Evening and Tonight:
Late spells of sun developing as showers ease through the evening. Low cloud will move in from the west overnight, bringing some outbreaks of light rain and drizzle to Cornwall and parts of Devon. Dry with clear spells elsewhere. Minimum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Friday:
Dull and damp in the west through the morning, whereas eastern areas starting out dry and bright, before patchy cloud develops. A few showers possible later but eastern areas drier. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Rain crosses southern areas early on Saturday, then a few showers follow. Cloudy with showery rain on Sunday, some heavy. Heavy showers or thunderstorms on Monday, especially in the east.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.